PEACHAM Heir to $50,000 Estate.

Mrs. George L. Robbins of Albany, N. Y, a widow, believes herself an heir to an estate of $50,000 left by Alonzo Robbins of Peacham, says the Albany Times Union. Alonzo Robbins, a wealthy bachelor farmer, died at Peacham, Feb. 8, 1898, leaving an estate valued at $50,000. It is said that he died without a will and his estate will therefore go to his direct heirs. About a month or so ago an article appeared in the papers to the effect that there were only four heirs, of which George L. Robbins of this city was one. About seven months ago George Robbins died suddenly, but did not inform his wife of the prospective estate. The widow has just received a letter from a friend in Vermont who refers to the estate and says that a notice of it was published in Albany papers during the early part of March. Mrs. Robbins was so wrapped up in the work of taking care of her two children and in the grief at the sudden death of her husband that she overlooked the notice and is now trying to obtain track of it. She says that the Peacham Robbins was an uncle of her husband. His father, Jonas Robbins, died in 1822. Jonas was George's grandfather. The family bible gives a perfect record of the family and contains the name of Alonzo. George Robbins was a farmer who resided in Shoreham, Vt., and Crown Point, N. Y. before coming to Albany. His uncle, Alonzo, was an eccentric old fellow so that the family had little communication with him. Mrs. Robbins will investigate the case and if there is a possibility of getting a share of the estate, will secure the services of a lawyer to get it. She is confident of establishing her right and the right of her children to a share in the estate.
